HOW TO USE THIS PLAYBOOK

This playbook contains 16 battle-tested ad scriptwriting frameworks, each designed for a specific persuasion strategy. Every framework includes:

The Psychology: Why this framework works on a neurological level
Quick Reference: The acronym flow at a glance
Detailed Breakdown: Each step with descriptions and examples
Script Template: Fill in the blank template ready to use
Example Full Script: A complete, ready-to-shoot script showing the framework in action
Hook Bank: 10 proven hook variations for each framework

Start with the framework that matches your goal. Adapt it to your brand. Test it. Iterate.

FRAMEWORK 1: THE SPARK METHOD

Social Proof Momentum

The Psychology

Humans are tribal. When we see a group moving in a direction, especially people we respect or identify with, we feel compelled to follow. This isn't weakness; it's hardwired survival instinct. The SPARK method leverages this by showing the viewer that a movement is already happening and they're missing out.

Quick Reference: S.P.A.R.K.

S = Signal the Shift
P = Puncture the Old Way
A = Announce the Alternative
R = Reinforce with Receipts
K = Kick Open the Door

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

S Signal the Shift

Call out a visible trend, migration, or behavior change among a relevant group. This is your hook. You're pointing at something happening in the world and saying "did you notice this?"

Example:

"Why are personal trainers canceling their own gym memberships?"

"Three Fortune 500 CEOs just replaced their entire design departments with one tool"

P Puncture the Old Way

Expose why the current mainstream solution is broken, outdated, or secretly working against the viewer. Create a crack in their existing belief.

Example:

"Those $200 serums are 80% water and marketing. Dermatologists have known this for years"

"You're using 7 apps to do what 1 can do. That's not organized, that's chaos with labels"

A Announce the Alternative

Introduce your product or solution as the thing the smart people have already switched to. Don't sell. Reveal.

Example:

"There's a reason 12,000 people switched to [X] last month. It's not cheaper. It's not flashier. It just works."

R Reinforce with Receipts

Stack proof. This can be data, testimonials, case studies, press mentions, before and afters, or raw numbers. The more tangible, the better.

Example:

"4.8 stars across 3,200 reviews. 93% of users see results in the first 2 weeks. Here's what Dr. Sarah Chen says about it..."

K Kick Open the Door

Your CTA. But make it feel like an invitation to join something, not a sales pitch. Reinforce the core benefit inside the CTA itself.

Example:

"Join the 12,000 people who stopped guessing and started seeing results"

"The smart money already moved. Your turn."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Signal the Shift]

"Why are [relevant authority group] all switching to [category]?"

BODY:

[Puncture the Old Way] "Most people still [common behavior], but here's the problem... [expose the flaw]."

[Announce the Alternative] "[Product/Brand] works differently. Instead of [old approach], it [new mechanism]."

[Reinforce with Receipts] "[Stat/proof point 1]. [Stat/proof point 2]. [Testimonial or authority quote]."

CTA: [Kick Open the Door]

"[Number] people already made the switch. [Benefit loaded CTA]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: NovaBrew Smart Coffee Maker

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person at kitchen counter, talking to camera]
"Why are baristas, actual baristas, ditching their espresso machines at home and switching to this?"

PROBLEM (5-15 seconds):

"Here's what nobody tells you about your $300 espresso machine. You're grinding beans wrong because the built-in grinder is set to one size. You're burning milk because the steam wand has no temperature control. And you're spending 15 minutes every morning on a drink that tastes worse than the $5 one at the cafe. That's not a coffee routine, that's a part-time job."

ALTERNATIVE (15-30 seconds):

[Shows NovaBrew on counter]
"NovaBrew figured out something the big brands ignored for years. Coffee quality isn't about pressure or steam power. It's about water temperature hitting the grounds at exactly the right moment. Their micro-pulse brewing system adjusts temperature 400 times per second based on the bean type you scan in. You literally scan the bag, press one button, and it does the rest."

RECEIPTS (30-45 seconds):

"8,500 five-star reviews. Three separate coffee publications named it 'Best Home Brewer of 2026.' James Hoffman did a blind taste test against a $2,000 La Marzocca and NovaBrew won. And it's not just coffee nerds. My mom uses it. My neighbor who drinks Folgers uses it. It just makes whatever you put in it taste better."

CTA (45-55 seconds):

"8,500 people already stopped fighting with their espresso machines. If your morning coffee takes more than 90 seconds, you're doing it wrong. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "Why is everyone in [niche] suddenly talking about [X]?"
2. "[Authority figures] are quietly switching to this, and here's why"
3. "I noticed something weird. Every [relevant person] I follow started using [X]"
4. "The [industry] just had its biggest shift in 10 years and most people missed it"
5. "When [specific large number] people all switch to the same thing, pay attention"
6. "This is what [professionals] are using behind closed doors"
7. "[X] million people made this switch in the last 6 months. Here's why."
8. "I asked 20 [professionals] what they actually use. Every single one said the same thing."
9. "Something strange is happening in [industry] and nobody is talking about it"
10. "The #1 thing [authority group] stopped doing this year, and what they switched to"

AI Video Bootcamp

FRAMEWORK 2: THE MYTH KILLER

Contrarian Authority

The Psychology

Nothing stops a scroll like someone saying "everything you've been told is wrong." Contrarian content triggers a neurological conflict. The viewer's brain needs to resolve the tension between what they believe and what you're claiming. That conflict keeps them watching.

Quick Reference: E.X.P.O.S.E.

E = Expose the Lie
X = X-Ray the Problem
P = Present the Pivot
O = Offer the Evidence
S = Show the Difference
E = Enlist the Viewer

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

E Expose the Lie

Start with a provocative statement that challenges conventional wisdom or industry practice. This is an aggressive hook that creates immediate cognitive dissonance.

Example:

"The supplement industry has been lying to you for 30 years about how vitamins actually work"

"College degrees don't predict success, and Harvard's own data proves it"

X X-Ray the Problem

Go deeper. Show specifically HOW and WHY the mainstream approach fails. Use specificity to build credibility. Numbers, ingredient names, study citations... the more granular, the more trust you build.

Example:

"Here's what's actually in your 'natural' protein powder: maltodextrin, which spikes your blood sugar faster than white bread. Soy lecithin, which 60% of people can't digest. And 'natural flavors,' which is just a legal loophole for 3,000 chemicals."

P Present the Pivot

Introduce your product as the logical conclusion of everything you just exposed. It shouldn't feel like a pitch, it should feel like the obvious answer.

Example:

"That's why we stripped everything out and built it from scratch. Three ingredients. All real food. Nothing to hide."

O Offer the Evidence

Hit them with your highest trust proof assets: clinical studies, before and afters, expert endorsements, lab results, certifications.

Example:

"Third-party lab tested. Published in the Journal of [X]. Used by [authority]."

S Show the Difference

Demonstrate what makes your solution categorically different, not incrementally better. This is your "we're playing a different game" moment.

Example:

"Other brands spend 40% of their budget on packaging. We spend 40% on the actual ingredients. That's why the label looks boring but the results don't."

E Enlist the Viewer

CTA framed as a call to smarter action, not just a purchase. Make the viewer feel intelligent for choosing your option.

Example:

"Stop paying for marketing. Start paying for results. Link below."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Expose the Lie]

"[Industry/Category] has been lying about [specific claim]... here's the proof."

BODY:

[X-Ray the Problem] "When you look at [common product], here's what you're actually getting: [specific flaw 1], [specific flaw 2], [specific flaw 3]."

[Present the Pivot] "[Product] was built because we got tired of [the lie]. So we [specific differentiator]."

[Offer the Evidence] "[Study/certification/test result]. [Expert endorsement]. [Data point]."

[Show the Difference] "While [competitors] focus on [superficial thing], we focused on [real thing]. That's why [proof of superiority]."

CTA: [Enlist the Viewer]

"If you're tired of being sold to, try something that actually works."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: TrueBlend Protein Powder

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person holding up a popular protein powder brand, looking straight at camera]
"Your 'clean' protein powder has 14 ingredients you can't pronounce, and the fitness industry has known this for years."

X-RAY (5-20 seconds):

"Let me show you what's actually in the top 3 best-selling protein powders. This one? Maltodextrin, which spikes your insulin higher than table sugar. This one? Sucralose and acesulfame potassium, two artificial sweeteners linked to gut bacteria disruption in every recent study. And this one, the 'organic' one? Soy lecithin, which 60% of people have trouble digesting, plus 'natural flavors,' which is literally a legal loophole that can include over 3,000 different chemicals. Natural. Sure."

PIVOT (20-30 seconds):

[Puts down the other brands, picks up TrueBlend]
"We built TrueBlend because this made us angry. Three ingredients. Grass-fed whey isolate, organic cacao, and monk fruit. That's the entire label. We didn't 'clean up' a dirty formula, we started from zero and only added what your body actually needs."

EVIDENCE (30-42 seconds):

"Third-party tested by NSF International, the same lab that tests supplements for Olympic athletes. 31 grams of protein per scoop, zero fillers, zero gums, zero artificial anything. Dr. Layne Norton, one of the most respected nutrition scientists in the world, uses it and recommends it. Not because we paid him. Because he read the lab results."

DIFFERENCE (42-50 seconds):

"Most brands spend 40 cents per serving on ingredients and $3 on marketing. We flipped that. Our packaging is boring. Our label is plain. Because we put the budget where it actually matters: inside the tub."

CTA (50-60 seconds):

"If you've been drinking protein powder without reading the label, now you know. If you want one you don't have to worry about, the link is below."

HOOK BANK

1. "The [industry] doesn't want you to know this"
2. "I worked in [industry] for [X] years. Here's what they're hiding."
3. "Stop falling for [common product claim]. Here's the science."
4. "Everything you've been told about [topic] is backwards"
5. "Why [common advice] is actually making your [problem] worse"
6. "A [professional] broke down what's really in [product]. I was shocked."
7. "I read the ingredient label on [popular product] and almost threw up"
8. "The reason [industry] hates this brand? They can't compete with the truth."
9. "Your [professional] knows this. They just won't say it out loud."
10. "What [big brand] hopes you never Google about their [product]"

FRAMEWORK 3: THE COUNTDOWN

Listicle Power

The Psychology

Numbered lists are one of the highest performing content structures in digital media because they set a clear expectation (the brain knows when it's "done"), create micro-commitments (each number is a tiny reward), and generate anticipation (what's #1?). For ads, the listicle format also gives you multiple chances to hook the viewer. If reason #3 doesn't resonate, #4 might.

Quick Reference: S.T.A.C.K.

S = Set the Number
T = Tear Down the Familiar
A = Arrive at the Answer
C = Certify with Credibility
K = Kick to Action

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

S Set the Number

Open with a specific number that creates curiosity. Odd numbers (3, 5, 7) tend to outperform even numbers. The number should be paired with an emotional qualifier.

Example:

"5 things destroying your skin and you're probably doing all of them"

"3 reasons your sleep quality tanked this year, and #2 will surprise you"

T Tear Down the Familiar

Each list item should expose a common behavior or product that the viewer is currently using or doing. You're creating "oh no, that's me" moments.

Example:

"1. You're using retinol without SPF, and that's making your wrinkles WORSE"

"2. Your 'clean' protein bar has more sugar than a Snickers"

"3. You're foam rolling wrong and it's actually tightening your fascia"

A Arrive at the Answer

After stacking the problems, pivot to your product as the single solution that addresses everything you just listed.

Example:

"What if one product fixed all three? That's exactly what [Product] was designed to do."

C Certify with Credibility

Social proof specific to the problems you listed. Match each claim with a proof point.

Example:

"Dermatologist recommended. 4,000+ five star reviews. SPF already built in."

K Kick to Action

CTA that references back to the list structure. Create urgency if genuine.

Example:

"Stop making these 5 mistakes. Fix them all with one product."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Set the Number]

"[Number] [emotional qualifier] reasons your [problem] isn't improving:"

BODY:

[Tear Down the Familiar] "#1: [Common behavior], and here's why it's failing you: [brief explanation]"

"#2: [Common behavior], this one's sneaky: [brief explanation]"

"#3: [Common behavior], [brief explanation that hits hardest]"

[Arrive at the Answer] "But what if you could fix all [number] with one thing? [Product] does exactly that because [mechanism]."

[Certify with Credibility] "[Proof point matching item 1]. [Proof point matching item 2]. [Social proof stat]."

CTA: [Kick to Action]

"Stop making these [number] mistakes. [Benefit loaded CTA]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: GlowShield SPF Moisturizer

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person looking at camera, slightly alarmed]
"5 things that are secretly aging your skin faster, and I guarantee you're doing at least 3 of them."

LIST (5-35 seconds):

"Number one. You're using retinol at night but skipping SPF in the morning. Retinol makes your skin photosensitive. Without SPF, you're literally accelerating the damage you're trying to fix.

Number two. Your moisturizer and your sunscreen are fighting each other. Most people layer an oil-based moisturizer under a water-based SPF. They separate on your skin within an hour. You're getting maybe 30% of the sun protection you think you are.

Number three. You're washing your face with hot water. Hot water strips your skin's lipid barrier. That 'tight clean feeling' is actually damage. Lukewarm. Always.

Number four. You're reapplying SPF over makeup, which means you're not reapplying at all. That powder SPF? It's giving you maybe SPF 5 on a good day.

Number five. You're using 6 different products every morning when your skin only needs 3 things: hydration, barrier protection, and UV defense."

ANSWER (35-45 seconds):

[Holds up GlowShield]
"What if one product handled all five of those problems? GlowShield is SPF 50 plus deep hydration plus barrier repair in a single step. It's water-based so it layers under makeup without separating. It's reef-safe, it's dermatologist developed, and it replaces your moisturizer, your SPF, and your primer. One pump. 10 seconds. Done."

CREDIBILITY (45-52 seconds):

"Recommended by 200+ dermatologists. 7,800 five-star reviews. Won Allure's Best of Beauty two years in a row. And it works on every skin type, I've seen the clinical data."

CTA (52-60 seconds):

"Stop making these 5 mistakes with 6 products. Fix them all with one. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "Top [X] reasons your [goal] keeps failing"
2. "[X] things you're doing every morning that are sabotaging your [goal]"

3. "I asked [authority figure], these are the [X] biggest mistakes in [category]"
4. "[X] [category] myths you still believe, and #[last number] is the worst"
5. "If your [thing] isn't working, you're probably making one of these [X] mistakes"
6. "I fixed [X] things and the results were insane. Here's what they were."
7. "[X] signs your [product/routine] is actually working against you"
8. "The [X] worst things you can do for [goal], ranked"
9. "Nobody told me these [X] things about [topic] until I wasted [time/money]"
10. "[X] reasons I threw out my [old product] and never looked back"

AI Video Bootcamp

FRAMEWORK 4: THE ORIGIN STORY

Founder Led Narrative

The Psychology

People don't buy products, they buy into people. When a founder tells their story authentically, it activates narrative transportation: the viewer's brain literally simulates the experience as if it were happening to them. This creates emotional bonds that no amount of feature listing can match. Origin stories also make the brand feel human, mission driven, and trustworthy.

Quick Reference: B.U.I.L.T.

B = Begin with the Human
U = Uncover the Enemy
I = Ignition Moment
L = Lay Out the Wins
T = Tomorrow's Vision

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

B Begin with the Human

Introduce the founder as a real person, not a CEO. Show them in a context that makes them relatable. Vulnerability is currency here.

Example:

"This is James. Two years ago he was sleeping in his car between shifts."

U Uncover the Enemy

Every good origin story has an antagonist. This isn't a competitor, it's a systemic problem that affects your ideal customer. The founder didn't just see this problem, they LIVED it.

Example:

"He watched his mother spend $400/month on medications that barely worked, and no one seemed to care."

I Ignition Moment

The breakthrough. The "what if" moment. This is the emotional peak of the story, the point where the founder decided to do something about it.

Example:

"One night he thought: what if the delivery system was the problem, not the ingredients?"

L Lay Out the Wins

Show measurable traction. Revenue, users, impact metrics, partnerships. Use 3 to 4 data points that demonstrate this isn't just an idea, it's working.

Example:

"18 months later: 50,000 customers. 4.9 star rating. Featured in Forbes. Profitable from day one."

T Tomorrow's Vision

Connect today's success to a bigger mission. Make it clear this is chapter one, not the whole book. This gives viewers something to root for.

Example:

"But this is just the beginning. By 2027, we're bringing this to 12 countries where people are paying 10x more for medicine that works half as well."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Begin with the Human]

"This is [Name]. [Relatable, humanizing detail]."

BODY:

[Uncover the Enemy] "[He/She/They] saw [systemic problem] firsthand. [Emotional specific detail]."

[Ignition Moment] "Then came the moment everything changed: [the insight/breakthrough]."

[Lay Out the Wins] "[Time period] later: [Metric 1]. [Metric 2]. [Metric 3]. [Metric 4]."

[Tomorrow's Vision] "But [Name]'s not done. [Bigger mission that aligns with viewer's values]."

CTA: [Call to Join]

"Be part of this story. [Action + benefit]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: MealPal Meal Prep Kits

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Woman in a small apartment kitchen, casual clothes, talking naturally]
"This is Sofia. Three years ago she was a single mom working two jobs and eating gas station food for dinner because she didn't have time to cook."

ENEMY (5-18 seconds):

"She'd get home at 9pm, kids already in bed, and the fridge was either empty or full of stuff that would take an hour to prep. She tried meal delivery services. $12 a meal, tiny portions, her kids wouldn't eat half of it. She tried meal prepping on Sundays but after working 60 hours a week, spending 4 hours cooking on her one day off felt like punishment. The whole system was built for people with time and money. Not for people like her."

IGNITION (18-28 seconds):

"One night she was sitting in her car in a Wendy's parking lot, eating a $5 meal before her night shift, and she thought, 'What if the problem isn't that I can't cook. It's that meal prep takes 47 steps when it should take 5.' That night she started designing what became MealPal."

WINS (28-42 seconds):

"Two years later: 35,000 families use MealPal every week. Average meal prep time went from 4 hours to 25 minutes. 4.8 star rating across 9,000 reviews. Featured in Good Housekeeping, Parents Magazine, and the TODAY Show. Every single recipe is designed to be made by someone who's exhausted, with kids pulling at their leg, using ingredients from any regular grocery store."

VISION + CTA (42-55 seconds):

"But Sofia's not done. Next year MealPal is partnering with 200 food banks to bring the same system to families who can't afford grocery delivery at all. Her goal is to make home-cooked meals possible for every family, not just the ones with two incomes and a Whole Foods membership. If your evenings feel like a battle between your kids eating well and your own sanity, join the 35,000 families who stopped choosing. Try MealPal free for a week."

HOOK BANK

1. "Meet [Name], [unexpected relatable detail that contradicts CEO expectations]"
2. "This is the person behind [Brand], and their story will change how you see [category]"
3. "[Name] lost everything before building [Brand]. Here's what happened."
4. "A [relatable profession] turned a personal frustration into a [X] million dollar company"
5. "The story behind [Brand] starts with [emotional moment]"
6. "Nobody believed in [Name]'s idea. [X] customers later, here's what they built."
7. "This company started in a garage with $200 and a problem nobody was solving"
8. "The founder of [Brand] used to be a [relatable job]. Then everything changed."

9. "Behind every great product is a story. This one starts with [raw moment]."
10. "[Name] didn't start a company. They started a movement. Here's how."

AI Video Bootcamp

FRAMEWORK 5: THE SHORTCUT

How To X Without Y

The Psychology

This framework weaponizes the viewer's desire for efficiency. Every human wants results without the painful parts. When you frame your ad as "here's how to get [thing you want] WITHOUT [thing you hate]," you're essentially offering a cheat code. The brain can't resist a shortcut.

Quick Reference: E.S.C.A.P.E.

E = Establish the Escape
S = Specify the Suffering
C = Cut to the Core
A = Articulate Why It Works
P = Paint the New Life
E = Exit with the Escape

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

E Establish the Escape

Your hook. Frame it as identity + desire + pain removal in one statement. The viewer should think "that's literally me."

Example:

"How I got clear skin without a 10 step routine, expensive products, or giving up pizza"

"How to build a 6 figure business without quitting your day job, hiring a team, or working weekends"

S Specify the Suffering

Mirror the exact daily frustrations your target audience faces. Be specific enough that they feel you're reading their mind.

Example:

"I was spending 45 minutes every morning on skincare. My bathroom counter looked like a pharmacy. And my skin? Still breaking out."

C Cut to the Core

Introduce your product as the "one thing" that eliminates all that complexity. Simplicity is the selling point.

Example:

"Then I replaced everything with this. One product. 30 seconds. Done."

A Articulate Why It Works

Connect each feature to a specific benefit using simple cause and effect logic.

Example:

"Niacinamide = controls oil without drying you out. Hyaluronic acid = deep hydration without the grease. SPF 50 = protection without a separate sunscreen."

P Paint the New Life

Show the contrast between the complicated old life and the simple new one. Make the viewer feel the relief.

Example:

"Now my morning is: wake up, one pump, walk out the door. My skin is better than when I was spending $300 a month."

E Exit with the Escape

CTA that reinforces the simplicity and identity. "If you're a [type] who [pain], then [simple action]."

Example:

"If you're tired of 10 products doing nothing, try the one that does everything. Link in bio."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Establish the Escape]

"How to [desired result] without [pain point 1], [pain point 2], or [pain point 3]"

BODY:

[Specify the Suffering] "As a [identity], I was [specific frustration 1]. [Specific frustration 2]. And the worst part? [Specific frustration 3]."

[Cut to the Core] "I replaced all of that with [Product]. One [product type]. [Time investment]. That's it."

[Articulate Why It Works] "[Ingredient/feature 1] = [benefit]. [Ingredient/feature 2] = [benefit]. [Ingredient/feature 3] = [benefit]."

[Paint the New Life] "Now I [simple new routine]. And [proof it works better]."

CTA: [Exit with the Escape]

"If you're a [identity] who [pain], [simple CTA + benefit]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: ZenDesk Standing Desk Converter

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person at a messy desk setup, looking at camera]
"How I fixed my back pain without a chiropractor, a $2,000 standing desk, or those weird posture corrector straps."

SUFFERING (5-18 seconds):

"I work from home 10 hours a day. By 3pm my lower back was screaming. I tried a lumbar pillow, made it worse. Tried a yoga ball chair, fell off it during a Zoom call. I looked into standing desks but I rent my apartment, I can't drill a motorized desk into a space I don't own. And the good ones cost $1,500 minimum. I was icing my back every night like I was 80 years old. I'm 31."

CORE (18-28 seconds):

[Places ZenDesk Converter on existing desk]
"Then I found ZenDesk. It sits on top of your current desk. No drilling, no assembly, nothing permanent. You lift it when you want to stand, push it down when you want to sit. Took me 4 minutes to set up and it holds two monitors plus my coffee."

WHY IT WORKS (28-38 seconds):

"Gas-spring lift mechanism means it goes up and down with one hand. 15 height settings so it adjusts to exactly your height, not just 'short' and 'tall.' The keyboard tray is angled at 7 degrees, which keeps your wrists neutral. That angle alone fixed my wrist pain I didn't even know was related to my desk."

NEW LIFE (38-48 seconds):

"Now I switch between sitting and standing about 6 times a day. My back pain is gone. Not better, gone. I stopped spending $200 a month at the chiropractor. And when I move apartments next year, I just pick it up and take it with me. No holes in the wall, no disassembly."

CTA (48-55 seconds):

"If you work from home and your back hurts by lunch, you don't need a new chair. You need to stop sitting for 8 hours straight. ZenDesk. Link below."

AI Video Bootcamp

HOOK BANK

1. "How to [result] without [hated activity]"
2. "I stopped [complicated thing] and got better results. Here's what I did instead."
3. "The laziest way to [result] (and it actually works)"
4. "If you're a [identity] with zero time for [activity], this is for you"
5. "I replaced [X] products with one. My [result] has never been better."
6. "What if you didn't have to [pain] to get [result]? You don't."
7. "I eliminated [time/money wasted] and still got better [outcome]"
8. "The one product that replaced my entire [routine]"
9. "[Result] without the [most hated part]. Sounds fake but here's how."
10. "I was overcomplicating [goal] for years. This simplified everything."

FRAMEWORK 6: THE RAW TAKE

Organic / Native Style

The Psychology

As consumers become more ad literate, they develop what psychologists call "ad blindness." Anything that looks or feels like an ad gets scrolled past instantly. The Raw Take exploits this by disguising your ad as native content, something that looks like it belongs in the viewer's regular feed. The moment it stops feeling like an ad, watch time skyrockets.

Quick Reference: B.L.E.N.D.

B = Begin Like Content
L = Lead with a Relatable Moment
E = Ease in the Product
N = Narrate the Experience
D = Deliver a Soft Close

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

B Begin Like Content

Start exactly like a regular TikTok, Reel, or YouTube short. No brand mentions. No product in frame. Just a person sharing something interesting. The first 3 seconds should be indistinguishable from organic content.

Example:

"Okay so I literally just discovered something and I need to tell someone" (selfie style, slightly rushed, imperfect framing)

L Lead with a Relatable Moment

Share a personal story or observation that your target audience will deeply relate to. This builds connection before any selling happens.

Example:

"I've been trying to get my energy back after having my second kid and honestly nothing was working. I've tried every supplement, every routine, every hack..."

E Ease in the Product

The product mention should feel incidental, not planned. Like they're just sharing what worked for them personally. Use phrases like "so I tried," "someone told me about," or "I randomly found."

Example:

"...then my sister literally handed me this thing and was like 'just try it.' I was skeptical but whatever."

N Narrate the Experience

Describe the actual experience of using the product. Sensory details, timeline, honest reactions including initial skepticism. Authenticity is everything.

Example:

"First week? Nothing. Honestly I almost stopped. But by week three I noticed I wasn't crashing at 2pm anymore. By week six my husband was like 'what happened to you?'"

D Deliver a Soft Close

The CTA should feel like a friend's recommendation, not a pitch. No urgency tactics. No scarcity. Just "here's where to get it if you want to try."

Example:

"Anyway I just wanted to share in case anyone else is going through the same thing. I'll put the link up if you want to check it out."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Begin Like Content]

"Okay so [casual opening that sounds like regular content, no product mention]"

BODY:

[Lead with a Relatable Moment] "I've been dealing with [relatable problem] for [time period]. I tried [thing 1], [thing 2], honestly [thing 3]... nothing."

[Ease in the Product] "Then [casual discovery method]. I was honestly skeptical but [reason they tried it anyway]."

[Narrate the Experience] "[Honest timeline]. [Week 1 reaction]. [Week X, when they noticed something]. [Specific change]."

CTA: [Deliver a Soft Close]

"Anyway, just wanted to share in case it helps someone. [Casual link mention]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: DreamDrop Sleep Supplement

AI Video Bootcamp

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Selfie camera, person in bed with messy hair, no makeup, talking casually like they just thought of this]
"Okay wait, I need to tell someone this because I'm genuinely freaking out a little bit."

RELATABLE MOMENT (5-18 seconds):

"So I've been the worst sleeper my entire adult life. I'm talking lying in bed for two hours, brain going a million miles an hour, finally falling asleep at 1am, then waking up at 4am for no reason and just... staring at the ceiling. I tried melatonin, made me groggy. Tried magnesium, did nothing. Tried those expensive sleep drinks, they just made me pee at 3am. I've been running on like 5 hours of broken sleep for literally years."

EASE IN (18-28 seconds):

"My roommate left this on the kitchen counter like two weeks ago and I honestly thought it was another one of her wellness fads. She takes like 30 supplements. But she's been sleeping like a rock and I've been jealous, so I was like whatever, I'll try it."
[Casually holds up DreamDrop bottle, not in a posed way]

EXPERIENCE (28-45 seconds):

"First night? I noticed my brain got quieter about 30 minutes after taking it. Like not drowsy, just... calm. I fell asleep in maybe 20 minutes instead of my usual 90. I figured it was placebo. Second night, same thing. By day 5 I slept 7 straight hours for the first time in I don't even know how long. Last night I slept 8 hours and I woke up before my alarm. I didn't even know that was possible for me. My roommate was like 'told you' and honestly I'm annoyed she was right."

SOFT CLOSE (45-55 seconds):

"Anyway I just wanted to share because I know there are people like me who've tried everything and given up. I almost didn't try this because I was so over sleep supplements. Glad I did. I'll put the link up if you want to check it out. No pressure, obviously."

HOOK BANK

1. "Okay wait I need to talk about something" (selfie style, mid activity)
2. "I've been keeping this to myself but I feel like I need to share"
3. "Someone asked me what changed and honestly it's kind of embarrassing"
4. "This is random but I just realized something about [category]"
5. "POV: you accidentally find something that actually works"
6. "Not sponsored, not an ad, just genuinely obsessed with this thing"
7. "I wasn't going to post this but too many people are asking"

8. "Can we talk about [topic] for a second? Because I have thoughts."
9. "Okay storytime, because this genuinely surprised me"
10. "I don't usually recommend things but I can't keep quiet about this"

FRAMEWORK 7: THE PRESSURE COOKER

Problem, Tension, Relief

The Psychology

This is one of the oldest and most effective persuasion structures in human communication. You identify a wound, press on it until the viewer can feel the pain, then offer the relief. The neurological effect is powerful. The brain experiences genuine tension during the "agitate" phase and genuine relief during the solution, which creates a strong positive association with your product.

Quick Reference: W.O.U.N.D.

W = Where It Hurts
O = Open the Wound
U = Understand Their Failures
N = Name the New Way
D = Deliver the Proof + CTA

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

W Where It Hurts

Identify the core pain point. Not a feature gap, an emotional wound. How does the problem make them FEEL? Frustrated? Embarrassed? Hopeless? Scared?

Example:

"That moment when you can't zip up the jeans that fit you 6 months ago"

"Lying awake at 3am because your mind won't stop racing about tomorrow"

O Open the Wound

Go deeper. Show them the ripple effects of this problem. How it affects their relationships, confidence, career, health. Stack specific scenarios.

Example:

"It starts with skipping the pool party. Then avoiding the beach trip. Then you stop looking in mirrors. Then you're ordering food for the clothing size, not the flavor."

U Understand Their Failures

Acknowledge what they've already tried. This is critical. It shows empathy and positions your product as different from all the things that already disappointed them.

Example:

"You've tried the cleanses. The fad diets. The $200 programs. Maybe they worked for a week. Maybe they didn't work at all."

N Name the New Way

Introduce your product not as another thing to try, but as a fundamentally different approach. Explain the mechanism, why THIS works when other things haven't.

Example:

"What if the problem was never willpower? What if it was your gut biome? [Product] works at the source, [specific mechanism], so your body stops fighting you."

D Deliver the Proof + CTA

Combine social proof with a CTA that offers risk reversal. The viewer is emotionally primed, so reduce the friction to zero.

Example:

"47,000 people already feel the difference. 90 day money back guarantee. Your body deserves better."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Where It Hurts]

"[Vivid, specific moment that captures the emotional core of the problem]"

BODY:

[Open the Wound] "And it doesn't stop there. [Ripple effect 1]. [Ripple effect 2]. Pretty soon you're [worst case emotional scenario]."

[Understand Their Failures] "I know because I tried everything. [Failed solution 1]. [Failed solution 2]. [How it felt when those failed]."

[Name the New Way] "Then I learned the real problem was [root cause]. [Product] addresses that directly by [mechanism]."

CTA: [Deliver the Proof + CTA]

"[Social proof stat]. [Risk reversal offer]. [Emotional benefit]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: ClearMind Focus Supplement

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person staring at a laptop screen, rubbing their temples]
"That feeling when you've been staring at the same paragraph for 20 minutes and nothing is going in. Your brain just... isn't there."

WOUND (5-18 seconds):

"And it doesn't just stay at work. You go home and your partner is telling you about their day but you're already somewhere else. You can't finish a book. You can't watch a movie without checking your phone. You start forgetting things, small things at first, then your kid's dentist appointment, then a deadline at work. Pretty soon you're Googling 'early onset memory loss' at 2am because you're 34 and you can't remember what you had for lunch."

FAILURES (18-28 seconds):

"I tried everything. More coffee, which just made me jittery and anxious. Nootropics from Amazon that did nothing. A $400 brain health program that was basically meditation videos I never watched. I tried going caffeine-free for a month and I was a zombie. None of it worked because none of it was addressing the actual problem."

NEW WAY (28-42 seconds):

[Holds up ClearMind bottle]
"Then my doctor explained something that changed everything. The issue isn't focus. It's neuroinflammation. When your brain is chronically inflamed from stress, poor sleep, and screen time, your neurons can't communicate efficiently. It's like trying to have a phone call with static on the line. ClearMind targets that inflammation directly. Lion's mane for nerve growth factor. Omega-3 DHA for membrane fluidity. Bacopa for neurotransmitter balance. It's not a stimulant. It's repair."

CTA (42-55 seconds):

"28,000 people are thinking clearer right now because they stopped trying to caffeinate their way through brain fog. 90-day money back guarantee, no questions asked. If your brain doesn't feel sharper in 30 days, you pay nothing. Your brain deserves better than another cup of coffee."

HOOK BANK

1. "If you know what it feels like to [vivid pain moment], keep watching"
2. "Nobody talks about the [hidden emotional effect] of [problem]"
3. "I was tired of pretending [problem] didn't bother me"

4. "POV: [painful scenario], and nothing you try works"
5. "[Problem] doesn't just affect your [obvious thing]. It affects your [deeper thing]."
6. "The worst part about [problem] isn't the [obvious]. It's the [hidden emotional cost]."
7. "I spent [amount] trying to fix [problem]. Nothing worked until I found this."
8. "You know that feeling when [specific painful moment]? I lived there for [time]."
9. "If you've given up on [goal] because nothing works, read this."
10. "Everyone says 'just [common advice]' about [problem]. That advice is useless. Here's why."

FRAMEWORK 8: THE GRIT AD

Lo-Fi / Anti-Production

The Psychology

In a sea of polished, high production content, something intentionally rough and raw stands out like a handwritten letter in a pile of junk mail. Meta's own research shows that creator style, lo-fi ads outperform studio produced ads by 63% in direct response campaigns. The imperfection signals authenticity, and authenticity builds trust.

Quick Reference: 3 RULES

1 = "How can I make this SIMPLER?"
2 = "How can I show this CHEAPLY?"
3 = "What's the OPPOSITE of what competitors do?"

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

1 "How can I make this SIMPLER?"

Strip every sentence down to its skeleton. If you can say it in 5 words, never use 15. Test: Would a 10 year old understand it? Can you delete 70% of the words?

Example:

Before: "Our journal helps you process emotions through evidence-based CBT techniques."

After: "ANGER JOURNAL + CBT PROMPTS = CALM"

Before: "Automatically invest your spare change from everyday purchases"

After: "COFFEE CHANGE = STOCKS. SET & FORGET."

2 "How can I show this CHEAPLY?"

Embrace ugly production values. Film with a phone. Use harsh lighting. Write on screen text in a notes app. Use MS Paint style arrows and circles.

Example:

Before: Professionally lit chef demonstrating blender.

After: Tired parent dumping powder into a water bottle while a toddler yells in the background. Text: "30 SEC = LUNCH DONE."

3 "What's the OPPOSITE of what competitors do?"

Whatever the industry standard ad looks like, do the reverse. If competitors show perfection, show reality. If they use joy, use anger or frustration. If they go long, go brutally short.

Example:

Skincare competitors: Flawless model applying serum in golden light.

You: Extreme close up of real flaky skin + before shot. Text: "THIS IS WHAT ACTUALLY WORKS"

Fitness competitors: Shredded athlete with dramatic music.

You: Regular person, out of breath, text: "DAY 1 LOOKS LIKE THIS. AND THAT'S FINE."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

NOTE: This isn't a step by step framework. It's a set of creative constraints you apply ON TOP of any other framework (SPARK, WOUND, STACK, etc).

STEP 1: Pick any framework from this playbook.
STEP 2: Write your script using that framework.
STEP 3: Apply all 3 rules to strip it down, make it ugly, and flip expectations.

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: FitPlan Home Workout App (using GRIT rules on top of PRESSURE COOKER framework)

VISUAL STYLE:

Shot on phone. Kitchen floor. No ring light. Dog walks through frame. Text overlays in iPhone Notes screenshot style.

HOOK (0-3 seconds):

[Person on kitchen floor in old sweats, out of breath, sweaty]
Text on screen: "DAY 1. THIS IS WHAT $0/MONTH LOOKS LIKE."

BODY (3-18 seconds):

[Still on floor, talking to phone propped against a cabinet]
"I cancelled my gym membership 4 months ago because who has time to drive 20 minutes, work out for an hour, drive back, and shower? That's 2 hours for 45 minutes of exercise. So I downloaded this app and I've been doing 20-minute workouts on my kitchen floor. No equipment. No shoes. My toddler climbs on me during planks. It's chaos."

[Cut to phone screen showing the app, filmed shaky, casual]

"But I'm down 11 pounds in 4 months. And I haven't missed a single day because 'missing a day' would mean not using my own floor for 20 minutes."

CTA (18-25 seconds):

Text on screen: "GYM = $50/mo + 2 hrs. THIS = $0 + 20 min. DO THE MATH."
[Person waves at camera, still on the floor]
"Link's in the bio or whatever. I'm gonna go lie here for a minute."

HOOK BANK

1. "Do you [emotional trigger]? Read this." (text on crumpled paper)
2. "[Screenshot of a notes app with one punchy line]"
3. "My therapist said I should write this down. So here:" (handwritten on paper)
4. "[Problem] in 2024 vs 2025" (crude side by side comparison)
5. "I made this in 5 minutes because it needed to be said"
6. "[Screenshot of text conversation about the product]"
7. "No fancy edit. No script. Just the truth about [product]."
8. "I filmed this on my phone in my kitchen because you need to see this"
9. "This isn't an ad. This is me telling you what actually works."
10. "[Handwritten note] Dear [audience], stop buying [competitor type]. Sincerely, someone who wasted $[X]."

FRAMEWORK 9: THE CONVICTION

Founder Objection Crusher

The Psychology

Every potential buyer has a voice in their head saying "but what about...?" The most effective sales technique isn't to ignore objections, it's to bring them up FIRST, louder and more bluntly than the customer would, then demolish them. When a founder pre-addresses doubt, it signals radical confidence and builds extraordinary trust.

Quick Reference: S.T.E.E.L.

S = State the Harsh Truth
T = Tell Your Identity
E = Echo the Exact Doubt
E = Eliminate with Evidence
L = Launch the Bigger Play

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

S State the Harsh Truth

Open with an uncomfortable reality about your market. Something undeniably true that immediately establishes credibility because most brands would never say it.

Example:

"90% of supplements on Amazon are glorified sugar pills. I know because I used to manufacture them."

T Tell Your Identity

Establish why YOU specifically have the credibility to challenge the status quo. This isn't bragging, it's positioning.

Example:

"But we're not marketers who hired scientists. We're scientists who learned marketing."

E Echo the Exact Doubt

Say the objection out loud. Quote the skeptics. Use the exact language a doubter would use. This shows you understand their resistance.

Example:

"People said: 'You'll never compete with the big brands.' 'Your packaging looks cheap.' 'Nobody cares about clean ingredients.'"

E Eliminate with Evidence

Now crush each objection with specific, verifiable proof. Match each doubt with an undeniable win.

Example:

"In 8 months: outsold [Competitor] in our category. Named 'Best New Brand' by [Publication]. 12,000 five star reviews."

L Launch the Bigger Play

Expand the vision beyond today's product. Show that this is a movement, not a moment.

Example:

"Next year we're open sourcing our formulas. If the big brands won't be transparent, we'll force the entire industry to be."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [State the Harsh Truth]

"[Uncomfortable industry truth that only an insider would say]"

BODY:

[Tell Your Identity] "We're not [expected identity]. We're [credibility building identity]."

[Echo the Exact Doubt] "People said: '[Objection 1].' '[Objection 2].' '[Objection 3].'"

[Eliminate with Evidence] "Here's what actually happened: [Proof 1]. [Proof 2]. [Proof 3]."

[Launch the Bigger Play] "And we're just getting started. [Bigger vision]."

CTA: [Rally]

"[Values aligned CTA]. [Link]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: PureRoots Organic Skincare

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Founder in a lab coat, standing in a small production facility, talking directly to camera]

"I'm going to tell you something that might make you uncomfortable. 80% of 'organic' skincare brands use the exact same base formula from the same three manufacturers in China. They just change the label."

IDENTITY (5-15 seconds):

"My name is Dr. Amara Osei. I'm a cosmetic chemist. I spent 9 years formulating products for brands you've definitely heard of. And I left because I couldn't stomach watching companies charge $80 for a serum that costs $1.20 to make. We're not influencers who launched a skincare line. We're chemists who got tired of the lies."

DOUBTS (15-28 seconds):

"When we launched PureRoots, the internet had opinions. 'Your packaging looks like it was designed in Microsoft Word.' Fair. 'Nobody is going to pay $35 for a serum from a brand they've never heard of.' Heard that a lot. 'You can't compete with Drunk Elephant and The Ordinary.' That was my favorite one. And the best: 'Clean skincare doesn't work as well as the real stuff.' As if chemicals are the only way to get results."

EVIDENCE (28-42 seconds):

"Here's what actually happened. 14 months in: we outsold two of those 'unbeatable' brands in our category on Amazon. 9,400 five-star reviews, and 73% of reviewers specifically mention visible results within 3 weeks. A blind clinical study by an independent lab showed our Vitamin C serum outperformed Drunk Elephant's by 22% in collagen production. Our 'Microsoft Word packaging' brand just got featured in Vogue, Allure, and the New York Times. Same month."

BIGGER PLAY + CTA (42-55 seconds):

"And we're just getting started. Next quarter we're publishing every single formula on our website. Full transparency. Every ingredient, every percentage, every supplier. If the big brands won't show you what's in the bottle, we'll show you what's in ours and let you decide. If you want skincare made by actual scientists instead of marketing departments, the link is below."

HOOK BANK

1. "They said [specific objection]. They were wrong. Here's the proof."
2. "The biggest lie in [industry], and how we proved it wrong"
3. "Everyone told us this was impossible. [X] months later..."
4. "I'll say what no one in [industry] will: [harsh truth]"
5. "Here's why [common objection] is completely backwards"
6. "We got laughed out of [X]. Then we [undeniable result]."
7. "The [industry] called us crazy. Then they called us competition."
8. "They said we'd fail in 6 months. We hit [metric] in 3."
9. "If you think [category] can't be disrupted, watch this."

10. "Nobody believed a [small detail] could beat [big competitor]. The numbers say otherwise."

AI Video Bootcamp

FRAMEWORK 10: THE FACE-OFF

Versus / Challenge Format

The Psychology

Competition is hardwired entertainment. From gladiator arenas to YouTube boxing matches, humans can't look away from a contest. The Face-Off leverages this by framing your product in a direct comparison, either against a competitor, against a difficult task, or against a clock. The stakes create tension, and tension creates watch time.

Quick Reference: R.I.N.G.

R = Raise the Stakes
I = Initiate the Showdown
N = Name the Winner
G = Go Get Yours

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

R Raise the Stakes

Open with a challenge that feels fun, relatable, and slightly ridiculous. The stakes should be visual and immediately graspable.

Example:

"Can I deep clean my entire apartment before my UberEats arrives?"

"Speed test: our blender vs. a $500 professional grade one"

I Initiate the Showdown

Show both options side by side. Split screen is king. Create a clear visual comparison that the viewer can follow.

Example:

[Split screen: Timer counting down / Product in action vs. competitor struggling]

N Name the Winner

Reveal the result with energy. The winner should be obvious, satisfying, and slightly surprising in HOW much better it performed. Then explain WHY.

Example:

"Done in 47 seconds. The other one? Still chunky. Not even close. It's the [feature], [technical explanation in simple terms]. That's the difference."

G Go Get Yours

CTA that references the challenge. Tie the victory directly to the viewer's life.

Example:

"If your blender can't keep up with your mornings, it's time for an upgrade."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Raise the Stakes]

"[Fun, visual challenge]. Let's see what wins."

BODY:

[Initiate the Showdown] "On this side: [Product]. On this side: [Competitor/old way]. Ready? Go."

[Show the comparison, split screen, timer, visual side by side]

[Name the Winner] "[Product] wins by [dramatic margin]. Why? [Feature] = [simple explanation of why it's better]."

CTA: [Go Get Yours]

"If [relatable scenario where viewer needs this], [CTA that references the challenge]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: TurboBlend Pro Blender

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person standing behind a counter with two blenders, frozen fruit, ice, and a timer visible]
"$89 blender vs. $500 blender. Frozen acai, frozen mango, ice, and almond milk. First one to make a smooth, drinkable bowl wins. Let's go."

SHOWDOWN (5-25 seconds):

[Split screen. Both blenders loaded with the same ingredients at the same time. Timer starts.]
[Right side: $500 blender struggles with the frozen acai. Chunks stuck to the sides. Person has to stop and push ingredients down with a tamper. Restarts.]
[Left side: Done. Timer shows 28 seconds. Pours into a bowl, smooth and thick.]

[Right side: Still going. Timer at 45 seconds. Still chunky.]

WINNER (25-40 seconds):

[Shows both bowls side by side]
"28 seconds vs... well, it's been over a minute and there are still chunks. And this is the $500 one. Here's why. TurboBlend uses a 6-blade stacked system instead of the standard 4-blade. The bottom blades pull ingredients down while the top blades chop. Nothing escapes. The $500 blender uses brute force RPM, which sounds impressive but just creates an air pocket that pushes frozen stuff to the sides. More power doesn't mean better blending. Smarter blade design does."

CTA (40-50 seconds):

"If your morning smoothie has chunks in it, it's not the recipe. It's the blender. TurboBlend Pro. $89 and it just beat a blender that costs 5 times more. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "Can I [fun task] before [time constraint]? Let's find out."
2. "[Product] vs [Competitor/alternative], this wasn't even close"
3. "I tested [X] against [Y] so you don't have to"
4. "The [X] second challenge that proves everything"
5. "Let's settle this once and for all: [X] vs [Y]"
6. "Everyone says [competitor] is the best. We disagree. Here's proof."
7. "$[cheap price] vs $[expensive price]. The results will shock you."
8. "I put [Product] through the hardest test possible. Watch what happened."
9. "Side by side, no tricks, no editing. Just the truth."
10. "[Product] vs [Product]. Only one survived. Here's which and why."

FRAMEWORK 11: THE BRIDGE

Goal, Gap, Gain

The Psychology

This framework mirrors the exact thought pattern of someone ready to buy: "I want X (goal), but I'm stuck because of Y (gap), and I need Z to get there (gain)." When you articulate this sequence out loud for the viewer, they feel deeply understood, which is the most powerful persuasion state possible.

Quick Reference: B.R.I.D.G.E.

B = Broadcast the Goal
R = Reveal the Real Block
I = Introduce the Bridge
D = Detail the Proof
G = Glimpse the Transformation
E = Encourage Action

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

B Broadcast the Goal

Start by naming a specific aspiration your audience has. Use current year language for urgency. Make it feel timely.

Example:

"Make 2026 the year you finally get consistent with the gym"

"You said this was the year you'd build that side income"

R Reveal the Real Block

Expose the actual reason they haven't achieved this goal yet. It's not laziness, it's a specific, identifiable gap. This is where empathy meets insight.

Example:

"It's not discipline. It's that you're following a program designed for someone with 2 hours and zero kids."

I Introduce the Bridge

Position your product as the missing piece that bridges the gap between where they are and where they want to be.

Example:

"That's exactly why [Product] exists. 20 minute workouts designed for parents who have 20 minutes, not 2 hours."

D Detail the Proof

Stack evidence that this bridge actually works. Use a mix of data, testimonials, and authority signals.

Example:

"14,000 parents are in the program. Average workout: 22 minutes. 89% stick with it past 90 days."

G Glimpse the Transformation

Show them what life looks like on the other side. Paint a vivid picture of the "after."

Example:

"Imagine actually looking forward to working out because it doesn't wreck your entire schedule."

E Encourage Action

CTA that ties back to the original goal. "If [your goal from the hook], then [action]."

Example:

"If 2026 is your year, this is your program. Start free."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Broadcast the Goal]

"[Year/moment] is the year you [specific aspiration], right?"

BODY:

[Reveal the Real Block] "But here's what's actually stopping you: [specific, surprising gap]. It's not [common blame]. It's [real reason]."

[Introduce the Bridge] "[Product] was made for exactly this. [How it bridges the gap specifically]."

[Detail the Proof] "[User count/social proof]. [Key metric]. [Retention/success rate]."

[Glimpse the Transformation] "Imagine [vivid picture of the 'after' state]."

CTA: [Encourage Action]

"If [restated goal from hook], [CTA + benefit]."

AI Video Bootcamp

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: LinguaFlow Language Learning App

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person scrolling through vacation photos on their phone, looking slightly frustrated]
"You said 2026 was the year you'd finally learn Spanish. It's June. How's that going?"

REAL BLOCK (5-18 seconds):

"And look, it's not because you're lazy. You downloaded Duolingo. You did the lessons for 3 weeks. You can say 'the cat drinks milk' in 4 languages. But you still can't order food in Barcelona without pointing at the menu. Here's the real problem: most language apps teach you vocabulary like flashcards. Isolated words with no context. That's not how your brain learns language. That's how your brain memorizes a test and forgets everything by Friday."

BRIDGE (18-32 seconds):

[Shows LinguaFlow app on phone]
"LinguaFlow was built by linguists who actually study how adults acquire language. Not memorize it, acquire it. Every lesson drops you into a real conversation scenario. Ordering at a restaurant. Asking for directions when you're lost. Arguing with a hotel front desk about your reservation. You learn the way you'd learn if you moved to Madrid tomorrow, just without the plane ticket. 15 minutes a day, and you're having real conversations within 30 days."

PROOF (32-42 seconds):

"92,000 users in 14 months. Average user holds a basic conversation after 28 days. 91% retention rate past 60 days, which is unheard of in language apps. Duolingo's is around 8%. The Washington Post called it 'the first language app that actually produces speakers, not just streak counters.'"

TRANSFORMATION + CTA (42-55 seconds):

"Imagine sitting at a cafe in Mexico City and ordering in Spanish without pulling out Google Translate. Imagine actually talking to the locals on your next trip instead of just smiling and nodding. If 2026 is your year to finally speak another language for real, not just on an app, this is your bridge. First month free. No credit card. Just start."

HOOK BANK

1. "Your [year] [goal] keeps failing because of one thing you haven't fixed"
2. "Still failing at [goal]? You're missing this one piece."
3. "The gap between wanting [X] and having [X] is smaller than you think"

4. "You don't need more [common solution]. You need [product category]."
5. "What if the reason [goal] feels impossible is that you're using the wrong [tool/approach]?"
6. "Make [goal] a reality with just one change"
7. "You're not lazy. Your [tool/routine/system] just doesn't fit your life."
8. "The only thing standing between you and [goal] is [gap]. Here's how to close it."
9. "[Year] doesn't have to be another year of [failed goal]. Change this one thing."
10. "I was stuck on [goal] for [time]. Turns out I was solving the wrong problem."

FRAMEWORK 12: THE CLIFFHANGER

Curiosity Loop

The Psychology

A curiosity loop opens a mental "gap" in the viewer's mind that demands resolution. The brain literally can't rest until the loop is closed. This is the same mechanism that makes you finish a bad movie just to see the ending. In advertising, it's one of the most powerful retention tools available.

Quick Reference: L.O.O.P.

L = Launch the Impossible Claim
O = Orchestrate the Story
O = Offer the Value
P = Pay Off the Promise

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

L Launch the Impossible Claim

Open with a statement that seems too good, too weird, or too contradictory to be true. The viewer MUST keep watching to make sense of it.

Example:

"I got my rent paid this month by buying a $12 candle"

"My boss gave me a promotion because I stopped working overtime"

O Orchestrate the Story

Build a narrative that slowly moves toward resolving the opening claim. Each beat should add context without yet explaining the hook.

Example:

"So here's what happened. I saw this candle brand on Instagram and thought it looked nice. But when I went to the website, I noticed their affiliate program..."

O Offer the Value

Within the story, naturally demonstrate the product's benefits. Let the advantages emerge from the narrative rather than being listed.

Example:

"The candle itself smelled incredible, my whole apartment was different. But the real thing was the affiliate link. I shared it with my followers and by the end of the month..."

P Pay Off the Promise

Close the loop. Reveal the resolution that makes the opening claim make sense. The "aha" moment should feel clever and satisfying.

Example:

"...I'd earned $1,400 in commissions. More than my rent. From a $12 candle purchase."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Launch the Impossible Claim]

"[Surprising/contradictory statement that demands explanation]"

BODY:

[Orchestrate the Story] "Here's what happened: [Story beat 1]. [Story beat 2]. [Story beat 3]."

[Offer the Value] "[Natural product experience woven into story]. [Benefit discovered through narrative]."

[Pay Off the Promise] "[Resolution that makes the opening claim logical and satisfying]."

CTA:

"[CTA that makes the viewer feel they can replicate the story]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: SkillStack Online Course Platform

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Person sitting at a nice desk setup, looking at camera with a slight smile]
"I quit my $95,000 a year job because of a $29 online course. And my income went up."

STORY (5-25 seconds):

"So here's what happened. I was a marketing manager at a tech company. Fine job, fine pay, fine everything. But I'd been freelancing on the side doing video editing for small businesses. Nothing crazy, just weekend projects. Then a friend told me about SkillStack. I took their 'Freelance Video Business' course thinking I'd pick up a few tips.

The course wasn't just editing techniques. It was how to price your work, how to build a client pipeline, how to package services so clients come to you instead of the other way around. I rewrote all my proposals using their framework. I raised my prices by 60%."

VALUE (25-40 seconds):

"Within 3 months my freelance income matched my salary. But here's the part that surprised me. The course had a module on building a team and delegating. I hired two editors, trained them using the exact workflows from the course, and started taking on bigger clients. Suddenly I wasn't just an editor. I was running a production company from my apartment."

PAYOFF (40-50 seconds):

"I quit my full-time job in March. It's September now and I've made $148,000 this year. From a $29 course. Not because the course is magic, but because it gave me the business framework I was missing. I knew how to edit. I didn't know how to run a business. That $29 filled a gap worth $50,000."

CTA (50-60 seconds):

"If you have a skill but you're stuck trading hours for dollars, the business framework is what you're missing. SkillStack courses start at $29. Best investment I've ever made and I'm not even exaggerating. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "[Impossible sounding result] because of a $[small number] purchase"
2. "The dumbest thing I ever bought ended up [incredible result]"
3. "I accidentally [amazing outcome] by [mundane action]"
4. "My [person] doesn't know this is why [surprising result]"
5. "How a [small/cheap thing] led to [huge outcome]"
6. "Everyone asked me how I [result]. They didn't believe the answer."
7. "I spent $[small amount] and got back $[huge amount]. No, this isn't clickbait."
8. "The worst decision I ever made turned into the best thing that happened to me"
9. "I broke every rule in [industry] and somehow [incredible outcome]"
10. "This $[X] purchase changed my entire [year/career/health]. Let me explain."

FRAMEWORK 13: THE WITNESS

Testimonial Cascade

The Psychology

Third party proof is exponentially more persuasive than first party claims. When someone who has nothing to gain says "this changed my life," it carries 10x the weight of the brand saying the same thing. A cascade of testimonials creates a "social proof avalanche" where each new voice makes the product seem more inevitable.

Quick Reference: V.O.I.C.E.

V = Verify the Pain
O = Open the Discovery
I = Illustrate the Change
C = Cascade the Social Proof
E = Endorse and Encourage

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

V Verify the Pain

Open with a real customer describing the specific problem they had. This should sound raw and conversational, not scripted.

Example:

"I was spending $200 a month on skincare and my face still looked like a pizza"

O Open the Discovery

The customer describes how they found the product. Casual, organic, not a pitch.

Example:

"My coworker had insanely clear skin and I finally asked her. She just showed me this one thing."

I Illustrate the Change

Walk through the transformation timeline. Specific details and sensory observations are key.

Example:

"Two weeks in, my forehead cleared up. By week four, people were asking what I changed. Month two, I wore no foundation for the first time since high school."

C Cascade the Social Proof

Stack multiple testimonials. Quick cuts. Different people, different demographics, all saying variations of the same thing. Volume equals credibility.

Example:

"Game changer, honestly"

"I threw out my entire old routine"

"My dermatologist asked me what I was using"

"Bought one for my mom, she's obsessed"

E Endorse and Encourage

The original testimonial giver returns for the CTA. It's their recommendation, not the brand's.

Example:

"If you've tried everything and nothing works, this was me. Just try it. Worst case you return it. Best case you stop buying 10 products."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Verify the Pain]

"[Customer voice]: I was [relatable struggle, be specific and honest]."

BODY:

[Open the Discovery] "[Casual discovery story, friend recommended, saw it online, etc.]"

[Illustrate the Change] "[Week 1 experience]. [Week 2 to 3, first noticeable change]. [Month 1 to 2, significant transformation with specific detail]."

[Cascade the Social Proof, 4 to 6 quick cuts]

"[Short testimonial 1]" / "[Short testimonial 2]" / "[Short testimonial 3]" / "[Short testimonial 4]"

CTA: [Endorse and Encourage]

"[Original customer returns]: If you're where I was, just try it. [Risk reversal]. [Honest recommendation]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: GutReset Probiotic

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Woman, mid-30s, sitting casually on a couch, talking to camera]
"I was spending $300 a month on digestive supplements and I still couldn't eat a meal without looking 6 months pregnant by dessert."

DISCOVERY (5-15 seconds):

"My sister, who never recommends anything, texted me a link and just said 'try this, trust me.' She'd been dealing with the same bloating for years and I noticed on Thanksgiving she ate two plates and didn't complain once. That's when I knew something was different."

CHANGE (15-30 seconds):

"First week on GutReset, honestly? Nothing dramatic. I almost gave up. But by day 10 I noticed I wasn't unbuttoning my jeans after lunch anymore. Week three, I ate pasta for dinner and woke up with a flat stomach. That hadn't happened in 5 years. By month two, I went to brunch with friends, ate pancakes, eggs, bacon, the works, and felt completely fine after. My friend literally said 'are you on something?' and I showed her the bottle."

CASCADE (30-42 seconds):

[Quick cuts, different people, different backgrounds]
"I can eat bread again without paying for it later."
"My bloating went from every single day to maybe once a week."
"I threw out everything else. This is the only thing that worked."
"My gastroenterologist asked what I changed. She wrote it down."
"I bought 6 bottles for Christmas gifts. Not even kidding."

CTA (42-55 seconds):

[Original woman comes back on screen]
"If you're where I was, bloated every day, afraid to eat the foods you love, spending money on stuff that doesn't work, just try it. They have a 90-day money-back guarantee so there's literally no risk. Worst case you return it. Best case you stop dreading meals."

HOOK BANK

1. "I was the biggest skeptic. [X] weeks later I'm buying it for everyone I know."
2. "When [X] different people tell you the same thing... maybe listen"
3. "My [friend/family member] told me to try this. I thought they were crazy."
4. "Real talk: I almost returned this. Then week [X] happened."
5. "I've never been the person to recommend products, but..."
6. "Here's what [X] people said after trying [Product]:"
7. "I asked 50 customers to be honest about [Product]. Here's what they said."

8. "Before you buy [category], watch what actual users think"
9. "Don't take my word for it. Take theirs."
10. "The reviews were too good to be true. So I tried it myself. They were right."

FRAMEWORK 14: THE DEMO DROP

Product in Action

The Psychology

Seeing is believing. A product demonstration removes the abstract and makes the benefit tangible. The brain processes visual demonstrations 60,000x faster than text claims. When someone SEES the product solving a problem in real time, the trust transfer is immediate.

Quick Reference: P.R.O.O.F.

P = Problem in Progress
R = Reveal the Product
O = Operate in Real Time
O = Observe the Result
F = Frame the Features

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

P Problem in Progress

Open by showing the problem happening in real time. Don't describe it, SHOW it. The viewer should feel the frustration.

Example:

[Character struggling to cut through a tough ingredient with a regular knife, slipping, squishing, making a mess]

R Reveal the Product

Product enters the frame. No long intro, just bring it in. Make the reveal clean and satisfying.

Example:

[Hand picks up the product. Simple. Clean. The viewer knows what's about to happen.]

O Operate in Real Time

Show the product solving the problem. Let the demonstration speak for itself. Minimal voiceover during the demo, let the visual do the work.

Example:

[Product cuts through the ingredient effortlessly. Clean, smooth, satisfying. The contrast with the opening is everything.]

O Observe the Result

Pause on the result. Let the viewer absorb the difference. This is your "wow" moment.

Example:

[Camera holds on the perfect result. Side by side with the mess from before.]

F Frame the Features

Now explain WHY it works. The demo created curiosity, the feature explanation satisfies it.

Example:

"Japanese steel. 67 layers. 15 degree blade angle. That's why it cuts like this."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Problem in Progress, show don't tell]

BODY:

[Reveal the Product] [Clean entrance into frame]

[Operate in Real Time] [Demonstrate the solution]

[Observe the Result] [Hold on the payoff]

[Frame the Features] "[Feature 1]. [Feature 2]. [Feature 3]. That's why it [performs this way]."

CTA:

"[Benefit loaded CTA]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: StainKill Portable Carpet Cleaner

HOOK (0-5 seconds):

[Close-up of a white couch cushion. A full glass of red wine tips over in slow motion. Wine spreads across the fabric. Camera holds on the stain.]

REVEAL (5-8 seconds):

[Hand reaches in with StainKill. Small, handheld device. No dramatic intro, just picks it up and positions it over the stain.]

OPERATE (8-25 seconds):

[StainKill sprays cleaning solution and immediately suctions. The red wine visibly lifts from the fabric in real time. Camera stays tight on the fabric. No cuts. No speed-up. You watch the stain disappear in one continuous shot. Wine goes from dark red to pink to gone. The suction pulls the liquid into a clear tank on the device so you can SEE the wine leaving the couch.]

OBSERVE (25-32 seconds):

[Camera pulls back. The cushion is white again. Person runs their hand over it. Dry. No ring. No shadow. Cut to: the device's dirty water tank, now filled with dark red liquid. All of that was IN the couch.]

FEATURES (32-42 seconds):

"Dual-action system. It sprays enzyme cleaner that breaks the stain apart at a molecular level, then instantly suctions everything out. 2,200 PSI suction in something that fits in your hand. The tank is clear so you can see exactly how much it pulled out. Works on wine, coffee, pet accidents, kid disasters, anything liquid that hits fabric. No scrubbing. No blotting. No praying."

CTA (42-50 seconds):

"If you own anything white, anything fabric, or anything a kid or pet has access to, you need this in a drawer. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "Watch this." (product in frame, no other context needed)
2. "I thought this was fake until I tried it myself"
3. "POV: You finally find [product type] that actually works"
4. "Okay this is actually insane, look at this"
5. "The difference is ridiculous. Watch."
6. "[X] seconds. That's all it takes."
7. "I didn't believe it either. Then I pressed record."
8. "No editing. No tricks. Just [Product] doing its thing."
9. "Put [Product] against [tough test]. Here's what happened."
10. "Stop scrolling and watch this for 10 seconds. You'll understand."

FRAMEWORK 15: THE TIME MACHINE

Before / After Transformation

The Psychology

Transformation content is one of the most engaging formats on every social platform because it provides instant proof of concept. The brain loves contrast, it's how we assign value. By showing the "before" and "after" states clearly, you create an irresistible proof of value that no amount of feature listing can match.

Quick Reference: S.H.I.F.T.

S = Show the Starting Point
H = Highlight the Breaking Point
I = Introduce the Change
F = Flash Forward
T = Transfer the Possibility

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

S Show the Starting Point

Begin with the "before" state. Make it feel authentic and relatable. This IS the viewer's current reality.

Example:

"6 months ago, my desk looked like this. 47 tabs open. 3 project management apps. Sticky notes everywhere. And I was still missing deadlines."

H Highlight the Breaking Point

Show the moment they decided enough was enough. The emotional tipping point.

Example:

"The day I missed my kid's recital because I was 'catching up on emails'... that was it."

I Introduce the Change

What they switched to. Keep it simple. One change, one tool, one decision.

Example:

"I replaced everything with [Product]. One app. One system. Done."

F Flash Forward

Show the "after" state with the same specificity as the "before." The contrast should be stark and visually obvious.

Example:

"Today: Zero missed deadlines in 5 months. Inbox clear by noon. Home by 5:30 every day."

T Transfer the Possibility

Make the viewer believe they can achieve the same transformation. The CTA should frame it as easy and risk free.

Example:

"If my chaotic, tab hoarding, sticky note addicted self can do it, so can you. Try it free for 14 days."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Show the Starting Point]

"[Time period] ago, [vivid description of the 'before' state]."

BODY:

[Highlight the Breaking Point] "The moment I knew I had to change: [specific emotional tipping point]."

[Introduce the Change] "I [one simple action]. [Product]. That's it."

[Flash Forward] "Today: [Metric 1]. [Metric 2]. [Metric 3]."

CTA: [Transfer the Possibility]

"If [self deprecating relatable detail] can do it, so can you. [CTA]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: FlowState Project Management App

HOOK (0-8 seconds):

[Screen recording: laptop with 52 browser tabs open, 4 different project apps visible, Slack notifications popping up, sticky notes stuck to the monitor, a Google Sheets tracker that's clearly chaos]
"4 months ago, this was my life. 52 tabs. Trello, Asana, Google Sheets, and a notebook I kept losing. I managed a team of 8 and I was the most disorganized person on it."

BREAKING POINT (8-18 seconds):

"The breaking point was a Thursday. I missed a client deadline because the task was in Trello but the deadline was in Google Calendar but the files were in a Slack thread from 3 weeks ago. The client called my boss. My boss called me. I sat in my car after work and thought, 'I am drowning in tools that are supposed to help me and they're making everything worse.'"

CHANGE (18-28 seconds):

[Shows FlowState app on screen]
"That weekend I deleted everything. Trello, Asana, the spreadsheets, all of it. I moved everything into FlowState. One app. Every project, every task, every file, every conversation, every deadline. One place. Took me about 3 hours to migrate everything and I haven't opened another project tool since."

FLASH FORWARD (28-42 seconds):

[Screen recording: clean FlowState dashboard, organized projects, clear timelines]
"Today: Zero missed deadlines in 4 months. My team actually knows what they're working on without asking me. I went from 52 tabs to 3. My inbox is clear by 10am because I'm not chasing updates in 4 different apps. I leave work at 5:30 now. Not because I'm working less. Because I'm not spending 2 hours a day managing the tools that are supposed to manage my work."

CTA (42-55 seconds):

"If my chaotic, tab-hoarding, sticky-note-on-the-monitor self can get organized, literally anyone can. FlowState has a free tier. Not a free trial, a free tier. Start there. If you're anything like me, you'll upgrade in a week because you'll realize this is the only tool you need. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "Same person. Same life. One change. Look at the difference."
2. "[X] months ago vs. today. I almost can't believe it."
3. "Before and after [Product]. This is real."
4. "What [time period] of [Product] actually looks like"
5. "I documented my entire journey. Here's month 1 vs month 6."
6. "The transformation nobody expected (including me)"
7. "I took a photo [time] ago and just compared it to today. Wow."
8. "My friends think I'm lying about how long this took. Here's the proof."
9. "Day 1 vs Day 90. Same camera. Same lighting. Completely different person."
10. "If you told me [X months] ago I'd look/feel like this, I'd have laughed."

FRAMEWORK 16: THE EDUCATOR

Value First Teaching Ad

The Psychology

When you teach someone something genuinely useful, three things happen: (1) they trust you as an authority, (2) they feel grateful, and (3) they associate the positive learning experience with your brand. This "value first" approach is the highest trust ad format because it gives before it asks.

Quick Reference: T.E.A.C.H.

T = Teach Something Real
E = Expand with Depth
A = Align with Your Product
C = Credentialize
H = Hand Off the Action

DETAILED BREAKDOWN

T Teach Something Real

Open with a genuinely useful piece of information that your audience didn't know. This should be valuable even if they never buy your product.

Example:

"Your phone screen has 10x more bacteria than a toilet seat. Here's the right way to clean it without damaging the coating."

"Most people drink coffee at exactly the wrong time. Your cortisol peaks between 8 and 9am, so caffeine then actually blocks its effect. Try waiting until 10."

E Expand with Depth

Go deeper than surface level. The more specific and detailed your teaching, the more credible you become.

Example:

"Here's why: your body's cortisol cycle follows your circadian rhythm. When cortisol is already high, caffeine competes with it instead of complementing it."

A Align with Your Product

Naturally connect the teaching to what you sell. The product should feel like the logical tool for applying what they just learned.

Example:

"That's why we designed [Coffee Brand] to be maximum effective in that 10 to 11am window. The blend is optimized for [specific mechanism]."

C Credentialize

Establish why your brand specifically is the authority on this topic. Show your work.

Example:

"We worked with 3 chronobiologists to develop this. Published in [Journal]. Tested with [X] users."

H Hand Off the Action

The CTA should feel like the natural next step in their education, not a hard sell.

Example:

"Want to get the most out of your caffeine? Switch your timing first, then try our blend. Link in bio."

SCRIPT TEMPLATE

HOOK: [Teach Something Real]

"[Surprising, genuinely useful fact that provides immediate value]"

BODY:

[Expand with Depth] "Here's why: [deeper explanation]. [Additional insight]."

[Align with Your Product] "That's exactly why [Product] was designed to [connection to teaching]."

[Credentialize] "[Authority backing]. [Research]. [Data]."

CTA: [Hand Off the Action]

"[Frame CTA as the logical next step in their learning journey]."

EXAMPLE FULL SCRIPT

Product: HydraCell Electrolyte Drink

HOOK (0-8 seconds):

[Person holding a glass of water, talking to camera like they're sharing a secret]

"You're drinking water wrong. Seriously. If you're drinking 8 glasses of plain water a day and you still feel dehydrated, tired, or get headaches, there's a reason. And it has nothing to do with how MUCH you're drinking."

DEPTH (8-25 seconds):

"Here's why. Water doesn't hydrate you. Electrolytes do. Your cells absorb water through something called sodium-potassium pumps. Without the right balance of sodium, potassium, and magnesium, water just passes through you. That's why you can drink a gallon of water and still feel thirsty, still get headaches, still feel foggy by 2pm. Your cells are literally letting the water pass through because they don't have the electrolytes to pull it in. It's like trying to fill a bucket with holes in it. The amount doesn't matter if the mechanism is broken."

ALIGN (25-38 seconds):

[Drops a HydraCell packet into a glass of water]
"That's exactly why HydraCell exists. It's not a sports drink. It's not flavored water. It's the exact ratio of sodium, potassium, and magnesium that your cells need to actually absorb the water you're already drinking. 3x the electrolytes of Gatorade with zero sugar, zero artificial sweeteners, zero dyes. One packet in your morning water and you're getting more real hydration from one glass than most people get from eight."

CREDENTIALS (38-48 seconds):

"Formulated with two sports medicine doctors and a renal physiologist. The ratio is based on the WHO's oral rehydration science, the same protocol used to save lives in developing countries. Used by 40+ professional sports teams. Tested with over 15,000 users in a 6-month clinical trial."

CTA (48-58 seconds):

"Step one: stop just drinking more water. Step two: fix the absorption first. One packet of HydraCell in your morning glass. That's it. If you've been tired and dehydrated despite drinking water all day, this is probably why. Link below."

HOOK BANK

1. "You're probably doing [common activity] wrong. Here's why, and the fix."
2. "A [expert] taught me this and it changed everything"
3. "I bet you didn't know this about [common thing]"
4. "[X]% of people don't know this about [category]. Here's the science."
5. "The truth about [topic] that nobody talks about"
6. "Stop [common mistake]. Here's what to do instead (and the science behind it)."
7. "I've been doing [activity] wrong for [X] years. A [professional] showed me why."

8. "This one fact about [topic] changed how I [related activity] forever"
9. "[Experts] know this. Your [category brand] hopes you don't."
10. "Free lesson: the [X] about [topic] that nobody teaches you"

BONUS: STATIC AD FRAMEWORKS

Quick-deploy static ad formats for social media

Static 1: The Offer Card

A bold, single-image ad built around one irresistible offer. Think: price anchoring, limited-time deal, or free bonus stack. The visual is clean, the copy is punchy, and the CTA is impossible to miss.

Best for: Flash sales, product launches, or when you have a genuinely compelling offer.

Key Elements:

Headline: One line, benefit driven
Offer: Price, discount, or bonus stack
Visual: Product image or mockup
CTA: Bright, contrasting button or text
Urgency: Deadline or limited quantity

Static 2: The Golden Review

A single, powerful customer review presented as the entire ad. The authenticity of a real person's words does the heavy lifting. Works best with reviews that tell a mini-story.

Best for: You have a standout review that reads like a mini testimonial.

Key Elements:

Review text: Large, readable, front and center
Star rating: Visual credibility signal
Customer name/photo: Adds authenticity
Product image: Small, secondary placement
CTA: "See more reviews" or "Try it yourself"

Static 3: The Editorial Callout

Designed to look like a magazine feature or press mention. Uses authority and editorial design to elevate perceived brand value. Works especially well for premium products.

Best for: You have press mentions, awards, or expert endorsements.

Key Elements:

Publication logo or "As seen in" banner
Pull quote from the review or feature

Product image: editorial style photography
Brand logo: subtle, premium placement
CTA: "Read the full review" or "Shop now"

Static 4: The Notes Screenshot

A screenshot of a phone notes app with a personal, raw message. This is the static equivalent of the Grit Ad. The imperfection IS the hook. Looks native, feels authentic, stops the scroll because it doesn't look like an ad.

Best for: You want maximum authenticity and "anti-ad" energy.

Key Elements:

Notes app UI: realistic screenshot style
Raw, honest copy: written like a personal note
No brand imagery: just text
Optional: handwriting style font for extra authenticity
CTA: embedded in the note naturally

Static 5: The Side-by-Side

A visual comparison that shows your product against the competition, the old way, or a before/after. The brain processes comparisons instantly, making this one of the fastest-converting static formats.

Best for: Your product has a clear, visual advantage over alternatives.

Key Elements:

Split layout: two clear columns or panels
Left side: "Without [Product]" or competitor
Right side: "With [Product]" or your solution
Labels: clear, contrasting text
CTA: positioned below the comparison

COMBINING FRAMEWORKS

Power combinations for maximum impact

The real power of this playbook comes from combining frameworks. Here are the most effective pairings:

SPARK + COUNTDOWN

Use social proof momentum to set up a numbered list of reasons people are switching. The combination of tribal psychology and listicle structure is extremely engaging.

MYTH KILLER + PRESSURE COOKER

Expose the lie, then press on the wound it creates. Start by shattering a belief, then agitate the pain of having believed it. Devastating one-two punch.

ORIGIN STORY + CONVICTION

Tell the founder story, then crush the objections. The emotional narrative creates connection, and the objection-crushing creates unshakeable confidence.

RAW TAKE + WITNESS

Combine organic-feeling content with a testimonial cascade. Start native, then stack real voices. The authenticity compounds.

SHORTCUT + BRIDGE

Show the easy path (Shortcut) and then bridge the gap between wanting results and taking action. Perfect for products that simplify complex problems.

CLIFFHANGER + DEMO DROP

Open with an impossible claim, then prove it with a live demonstration. The curiosity hook gets them watching, the demo proves the payoff.

GRIT AD + any framework

Apply the 3 Rules (simplify, make it cheap, flip expectations) to ANY other framework. This is a creative filter, not a standalone. Layer it on top of SPARK, WOUND, BRIDGE, or anything else.

EDUCATOR + SPARK

Teach something genuinely useful, then show that a wave of people are already using this knowledge with your product. Education builds trust, social proof closes the deal.
